PRESTON GAINES BUYS OUT FATHER

Going from father to son, the Gaines Store has been in existence since 1896 and is one of Hondo's oldest business enterprises. This month the founder, Mr. C. R. Gaines, sold the store to his son, Preston C. Gaines, who is now remodeling and redecorating the building preparatory to re-opening the store with a large line of sporting goods and light hardware. The new owner is personally contacting wholesale houses to secure merchandise. Mr. C. R. Gaines came to Hondo in 1892 when he went into partnership with a Mr. Thibault in the blacksmithing trade. In 1896 he started selling guns and ammunition. He has carried on this business until recently when he retired because of ill health. His son recently returned from 41 months spent in Honolulu, T. H., where he worked under civil service in maintenance of aircraft. Prior to that he was in business in Hondo as owner of a service station and at one time was dealer for Buick and Chevrolet cars.

KOLLMAN BROS. STORE CLOSED FOLLOWING FIRE

E. E. Kollman, owner of Kollman Brothers Red and White Store, announces that his store will be temporarily closed for repairs and re-stock following the devastating fire of last Friday morning. So far as can be determined the blaze started in the grocery department of the store but its origin is unknown. Damage to stock was considerable and some damage was done to the building and equipment. The local fire department worked many hours after discovery of the fire by Night Watchman Walter McClaugherty, extinguishing the fire which threatened the entire block on North Front Street. No estimate of loss suffered by Mr. Kollman or Mrs. J. E. Murphy, who owns the building, was given but it ran into thousands of dollars and is partly covered by insurance.

B&PW CLUB MAKES PLANS FOR OPENING PUBLIC LIBRARY

At the regular meeting of the Hondo Business and Professional Women's Club Tuesday night, Feb. 19, in the Community Center, definite steps were taken for the opening of the public library at the Center. It was voted to open the library to the leading public Tuesday, March 5th. For the time being, until demand warrants additional hours, the library will be open every Tuesday from 6 to 8 P.M. and every Friday from 7 to 10 P.M. Members of the B&PW Club will serve as librarian and a committee in charge was appointed, including Mrs. Ed Cameron, chairman, Mrs. R. X. Vance, Miss Thelma Lynch, Mrs. A. H. Rothe and Mrs. Earl Starnes.

The Hondo B&PW Club, as one of the member organizations forming the Hondo Community Center council, accepted the books donated by the Hondo USO Club for the Center and will serve as custodian of them. Donations from individuals of good literature, particularly current fiction and best sellers, will be appreciated and will contribute greatly to the success of the community project. Book contributions may be made by contacting any member of the Club's library committee.

As a sponsoring agent of the Community Center, the Club voted to make an initial donation of $25.00 to the finance committee of the Center. Other fund-raising projects will be planned for the future.

Members who attended the State-wide Leadership Conference in Austin last weekend gave brief accounts of the meeting.

During the social hour following the business session, refreshments of canapes, cake and cokes were served by the hostesses, Mrs. F. H. Hollmig and Miss Mary Agnes Hubbard.

The next regular meeting of the Club will be March 12, at which time Miss Nora Karrer and Miss Thelma Lynch will be hostesses.

ST. JOHN'S PARISH NOTES

Mexican Dinner Planned

The Mothers' Club of St. John's School met at the school Thursday, February 14th, for their monthly meeting. A Mexican dinner was planned for Sunday, March 3. Mrs. L. F. Laake was made general chairman. Keno will be the featured form of entertainment with other attractions. It was decided that the Mothers' Club retain fifty percent of the net proceeds and the remaining fifty percent be placed in the building fund. The Girl Scouts in Troop 1 will lend their assistance.

Thirty members, the Sisters of the school and Rev. E. T. Vinklarek attended this meeting. One new member, Mrs. Tony Taylor, was admitted into the club. Sister Crescentia received the room award.

Election of Officers Held

Election of officers of the Altar Society was held at their regular meeting immediately following the meeting of the Mothers' Club. Mrs. Robt. Koch was re-elected president. Mrs. Paul Renken was elected vice-president, succeeding Miss Hulda Nester, and Mrs. R. J. Zerr, secretary-treasurer, succeeding Mrs. Joe Meyer.

AN APPRECIATION

This is to express my appreciation to Night Watchman, Walter McClaugherty for the alertness that discovered the fire in my store in the early morning of February 15th, and also to the boys of the Volunteer Fire Company for the manner in which they responded to the fire alarm and controlled the flames after arrival. While my loss is heavy, this timely and effective service combined with the efficiency of the Department equipment not only minimized my personal damage but possibly saved the town from a serious conflagration.

Your assistance in this emergency will be ever remembered.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Seek to Avert Mass Starvation In Europe; New Wage-Price Plan Seen as Spur to Production

WORLD RELIEF:
Need Great

In calling upon the American people to pull in their belts and get along on a smaller and less varied selection of meats, cheese, evaporated milk, ice cream, margarine, salad dressing and beverages, President Truman declared that the threat of starvation overseas was greater today than at any other time in history.

While Americans have been consuming about 3,300 calories per person, he said, more than 125 million people in Europe will have to subsist on less than 2,000 calories a day; 28 million will receive less than 1,500 calories a day, and large groups will get as little as 1,000 calories.

In shaping a nine-point program to enable this country to meet relief requirements overseas, the administration placed emphasis upon conservation of dwindling wheat supplies to assure fulfillment of export goals of 225 million bushels.

No less than 25 million bushels of wheat were expected to be saved during the first half of 1946 by raising the quantity of flour produced from a bushel of wheat to 80 per cent. As a result, more dark bread will be made. Another 20 million bushels of grain are to be conserved by discontinuing the use of wheat in the direct production of alcohol and beer and limiting the use of other grains for beverage alcohol to five days' consumption per month.

At the same time, the department of agriculture will seek to cut down on use of feed grains by encouraging the speeding of marketing of hogs and beef cattle and culling of poultry.

The other provisions of the administration's nine-point program include the acceleration of rail shipments of wheat, corn, meat and other foods; exportation of 375,000 tons of fats and oils, 1,600,000,000 pounds of meat, and increased supplies of canned milk and cheese; establishment of wheat and flour inventory controls on millers, bakers and distributors; and efforts to move more copra for coconut oil from the Philippines.

WAR CRIMINAL:No Reprieve

Having been convicted by an American military commission for countenancing atrocities in the Philippines, Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita's life rested in the hands of President Truman after the Supreme court had validated his trial and Gen. Douglas MacArthur refused to mitigate the sentence.

As the President considered clemency there was resentment in Japanese circles over MacArthur's orders that Yamashita be stripped of his uniform, decorations and other army accessories in being hanged. Declaring that Yamashita was an adherent of the ancient Samurai warrior tradition, Nipponese generals said he was entitled to a soldier's rather than a common criminal's death.

In ordering Yamashita's hanging in disgrace, MacArthur asserted that the Jap had dishonored the military profession by countenancing troop rapacities instead of insisting upon their protection of the weak, whether friend or foe. Scoring the Japanese sack of Manila, MacArthur compared the destruction with American respect for the city in 1942 despite its impending loss.

CONGRESS:Labor Curb

Despite quick house action in passing the drastic Case bill with its restrictive labor legislation, the senate was expected to proceed more slowly in considering the measure.

Holding their lines solidly throughout the week-long debate on the bill, a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats beat down all efforts to take the teeth out of the legislation by modifying provisions or eliminating all enabling clauses to reduce the measure to a mere declaration of policy.

While liberals assailed the bill as one of the most vicious anti-strike laws to come before congress, proponents clung fast to provisions setting up a mediation board to consider disputes; requiring 30-day cool-to absorb the added expense. Though admitting that a rise in living costs would result from the policy, administration leaders declared that the volume output following resumption of work would bring prices to normal, reasonable levels.

In developing the new formula, President Truman affirmed his belief in a previous plan he had proposed under which prices would have been raised only if industry had proven its inability to absorb wage increases. While the plan would have worked with full production, he said, obstructions to large-scale output necessitated a revision of policy.

UNO:
Save Face

At odds in the United Nations organization over the question of the presence of British troops in Greece, Russia and Britain patched up their differences with acceptance of a face-saving formula under which the security council dropped consideration of the issue without a formal pronouncement.

By dropping the question without further ado, UNO avoided the possibility of impairing the prestige of Russia by refuting its charges that the presence of Tommies in Greece threatened the peace of the world or offending Britain by acknowledging the Red accusations.

Russia's charges that the Tommies' alleged protection of rightists in Greece against leftists elements would have international repercussions followed close upon what it believed were British inspired Iranian complaints against Red interference with orderly government in that country. Occupying a strategic position along the British life-line in the eastern Mediterranean, Greece, along with oil-rich Iran, ranks as a key spot in the Near East.

WORLD COURT:
Name American

Top legal body of the United Nations Organization, the new International Court of Justice will include one American among its 15 members, Green H. Hackworth of Chevy Chase, Md., being elected to the tribunal.

In supplanting the old world court the new tribunal ranks as the principal organ of UNO for resolving judicial disputes between nations. In addition, the court can be called upon to furnish legal advice to accredited UNO agencies.

A legal adviser to the state department since 1925, Hackworth has participated in many international conferences. Accompanying Secretary of State Hull to Moscow in 1943, he subsequently attended the Dumbarton Oaks and San Francisco conferences. With the U. S. delegation at the London sessions of UNO, Hackworth also is chairman of the United Nations committee of jurists. As a justice on the new court, he will draw $20,200 annually.

Despite proposals for purchasing the area recommended for from $600 to $800 per acre, residents of both Greenwich and Stamford voted against the inclusion of town areas in the site.

Liquor Revenue Up

Totaling 233,070,000 pounds, honey production in 1945 topped 1944 output by 23 per cent and was 19 per cent above the 1939-44 average.

While boosting production, beekeepers also enjoyed higher prices resulting from the sugar shortage, an increase in the packing of one-pound and five-pound containers to take advantage of higher ceilings, and a rise in retail sales.

FULL EMPLOYMENT:
Water Bill

With Democrats and Republicans alike expressing agreement, the house passed a diluted version of an administration-backed "full employment" bill that would have committed the government to providing jobless work at prevailing wages.

As finally framed by a house-senate conference committee and pushed through congress, the new bill sets up a council of three economic advisers delegated to prepare annual reports on levels of employment, production and purchasing power and draw up a program for correcting maladjustments. A congressional committee of seven will then act upon the recommendations.

In typical comment on the measure, Rep. Manasco (Dem., Ala.) declared that it was high time congress announced an unwillingness to continue deficit spending except in extreme emergencies, and Rep. Judd (Rep., Minn.) said the bill could do no harm and may do good.

LABOR:Bloody Outbreak

Murder charges were filed against four armed guards of the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad following an alteration between employees of the company and pickets near a siding at Gridley, Ill., in which two strikers were killed and three others wounded.

Climaxing the T.P.W.'s tempestuous labor relations with the railroad brotherhoods, the bloody affray developed after the company had run its first train over its eastern division since the union walkout last October. At that time, the government had returned the T.P.W. to its owners following its wartime operation of the strategic 239 mile line after taking over the property in 1942. Seizure resulted from T.P.W. President G. P. McNear's refusal to arbitrate a dispute.

Having followed the train along a paralleling highway, about 25 pickets parked their cars close to a siding in Gridley and moved toward a nearby switch which the four armed guards approached to "throw." As the guards and pickets neared each other, shots were fired and the strikers fell. Though it was admitted that the pickets carried rocks, police sought to determine whether any had been armed.

NEAR EAST:Russ Claims

Repeated communist demands for the return of Turkish-held Armenian lands to Russia focused increasing attention on the Near East.

Latest communist appeal for the return of Turkish provinces of Kars and Ardagan to Russia was made by Grigori Arutinov, secretary of the Communist party of Soviet Armenia. In an election speech at Yerevan, played up in Moscow, Arutinov declared that the Armenian people raised the question of regaining the territory ceded to Turkey in 1921 in a border dispute.

In the face of growing Russian pressure for the readjustment of Turkey's mountainous eastern border, and other demands for a strip of Turkey's northern Black sea coast, Istanbul has stood fast against territorial revisions. With the central government announcing its intentions to fight for every inch of ground, nationalists sentiment in the threatened provinces has been fanned to a patriotic pitch.

FARM LAND:Sales Drop

A continued rise in farm land values and moderate decline in the volume of sales were leading developments in the farm real estate market during the year 1944-45, the agriculture department said.

For the United States as a whole, land values during World War II (1939-45) increased 50 per cent as compared with a 25 per cent increase during World War I (1914-18).

Washington DigestSocial Security Need Of Low-Income Farmers

Amazingly Small Cash Marketings of Large Group Leaves Little to Be Put Aside; State Units Carry Relief Burdens.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

(This is the first of two articles on "Social Security for the Farmers.")

When the navy announced its plan for the biggest postwar boom in history — its intention to blow a 97-ship fleet skyhigh with the atom bomb—I couldn't help recalling the answer which a little girl gave to a reporter before the war ended. He asked her: "What do you want to be when you grow up?" The youngster replied, "Alive."

In this atomic era, it's pleasant to note, then, that there are at least two groups of people in this country who not only assume that most of us will stay alive for a reasonable period, but who are making plans based on that assumption.

One group comprises the radar experts who earnestly promise we'll be rocketing to the moon and back by 1996—stopping to refuel along the lunar skyway at filler-up stations suspended in space and perhaps plucking moonflowers in a hanging garden.

The second group is the National Planning association — specifically its agriculture committee—which expects the farmer not only to grow up, but to live at least to the age of 65, at which time he will want to retire. Making that retirement possible is the subject of a new NPA bulletin by Murray R. Benedict, professor of agricultural economics at the University of California.

Why is the farmer so favored? Is he the only worker who wants to retire and live out his old age in reasonable financial security? What about the tired-out typists? Isn't the weary welder worthy?

Be that as it may, Mr. Benedict's retirement plan is based solely on bringing the farmer into the federal social security system.

Most industrial and white collar workers like typists, welders and butchers, are already covered by social security. When the time comes for them to quit work for good, they can count on a small, but regular monthly income from social security benefits.

Not so the farmer. When he can work no longer, he has to live off what he's saved or by selling the south forty—and if he hasn't saved anything, that's his hard luck—or whoever has to take care of him.

Administration Proves Problem

The farmers were not included in the social security setup when it was inaugurated in 1935, because the lawmakers and administrators felt they couldn't cope with his peculiar problems at the time. For the same reason, they passed over the self-employed worker, the domestic employee, the government and railroad worker, the employee in non-profit organizations. Such workers posed too much of an administrative problem, the legislators felt, so they left them out, as far as social security was concerned.

Now, however, the system has been operating for more than 10 years, and it's high time, Mr. Benedict thinks, to ring farmers in on its benefits. He feels the other uninsured groups mentioned above should be included, too, but he concentrates on the case of the farmer.

The farmer, like everyone else, faces the grim prospect of dependency and want in old age. Like everyone else, he strives to guard against such contingency by working hard and trying to save money. But in 1939, more than half the farm owners of the country marketed less than $75 worth of products from their land. Deduct from that the products the farmer's wife used at the table, the farm equipment he has to buy, shoes for the children, and an occasional Saturday night trip to the big city—and it's plain there is going to be precious little money left to stow away under the mattress or in the sock.

Hired farm workers fare no better in this matter of saving money than does the man who owns the farm. The hired man may earn $27.30 a month if he eats "in." If he boards out, his monthly wage may be $35.32—when he works. It's quite possible he's a seasonal worker—shifting from job to job as crops mature and orchards blossom, which means his annual income is far from fixed or steady.

So the farmer and the hired farm worker, no matter how hard they work, may find it impossible to save money toward the time when they can no longer wield the scythe and hay fork. Nor is the farmer able, in many cases, to put by a little money to provide for his wife and family, should he die prematurely or be disabled.

Consequently there are more and more aged persons in rural areas who have to be cared for by county and state on a charity basis—a procedure which is not only expensive but unfair, since it treats thrifty and thriftless exactly alike. The charity or "old age assistance" as it's called, lumps together the persons who strove to take care of themselves during their working years but failed, with those who squandered their earnings.

Mr. Benedict guesses there'd be fewer such charity cases and fewer farmers haunted by the spectre of becoming such charity cases were workers in agriculture allowed to participate in the social security system. As everyone knows, the system is really a huge mutual insurance company. Each person makes a regular compulsory payment which is geared to his ability to pay.

Evolve Plan For Payments

If the farmers were covered by social security (and Mr. Benedict isn't the only one who thinks they should be, most of the important farm organizations have okayed the idea; both presidential candidates in the last election endorsed it, and the social security board on January 28 once again impounded congress to include farmers in), it would work something like this:

Farmer Jake Duncan adds up his year's sale of farm products and finds he has marketed less than $75 worth. That's his gross cash income. Under Mr. Benedict's plan, Jake would be brought into the social security system as a self-employed worker on an assumed net income of $400 a year.

Now Jake is "self-employed"—and at the present time there is no provision in the social security act for insuring the self-employed, either in agriculture or in private business. The way it works now, the employed worker who IS covered pays into the trust fund 1 per cent of his wages; his employer contributes 1 per cent in his behalf.

Since Jake has no employer, Mr. Benedict suggests that Jake contribute both the employer and employee share, in other words, 2 per cent of his net income.

And his net income, as stated earlier, is $400. So Jake would pay $8 a year. If he makes these payments continuously for 30 years, he will have paid into the social security fund $240. At retirement, he would be entitled to approximately $13 a month. Not a munificent sum by any means, but perhaps just the little bit extra which, added to whatever other assets he has, may keep him from going to the poorhouse in later years. And his social security contributions pay off rapidly. In a little more than two years after he has retired, Jake will have received back every cent he paid in, plus interest. Not only that but during the 30 years he will have had the protection of survivorship insurance. That is, if he should die prematurely, his widow would not be left completely penniless. She would get three-fourths of the monthly sum to which he was entitled at the time he died.

Suppose Jake finds it hard to scrape together eight dollars at one specific time? In that case he might use a stamp book. A book perhaps similar to war stamp books. Jake's social security stamp book would probably be issued by the post office or by the social security board. Whenever he had a little extra money, he could buy stamps to paste in it. When the time came for him to make his annual eight dollar payment, he would turn in the stamp book plus whatever cash was needed to make up the balance.

Jake would have a social security account number and he'd have to report his yearly earnings but the report would be very simple. All he'd have to do would be to state how much gross cash income he received for the year, sign his name, and that's all there'd be to it.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Spratt Herlong, motion picture producer, met and married Elizabeth, whose first husband, Arthur Kitteridge, was reported killed in World War I. Arthur, badly disfigured and not wanting to live, had the false report sent out. When he came to America he was employed by Spratt and soon became acquainted with the entire family. Elizabeth thought that she had met him some place, but his change and the same of Kessler made it impossible for her to place Kessler. He showed keen interest in Brian's collection of mounted insects, and promised to get and mount a bat for him. All the children became fond of him.

CHAPTER XV

Elizabeth turned to the desk and began writing an order for some tools needed for the Victory garden. She had finished this and several other notes when she heard Dick and Cherry come in. Going to her doorway, she watched them scamper up the stairs, enjoying the healthy windblown look of them. "Did you have a good time?" she asked.

"Oh yes," said Cherry. "The sea was just beautiful and we all had a hot dog and Dick ate two egg sandwiches besides."

"Meat shortage," Dick explained. "They wouldn't give us but one hot dog apiece."

"I don't know why you don't kill yourself," Elizabeth exclaimed.

Dick said he felt fine, which he evidently did. They said good night, and Elizabeth went downstairs. Spratt and Kessler should be finishing up their conference by now if they expected to go to work in the morning. They did appear in a short time, Spratt saying he didn't know why Kessler insisted on taking a taxi when he'd be glad to drive him home. Shaking his head with good-natured insistence, Kessler said,

"I'm sure Mrs. Herlong will agree with me. I can't drive, but it's one of my principles not to let my friends drive for me if I can help it. It may be convenient tonight, but there will be times when it isn't. Am I right, Mrs. Herlong?"

How sensible he was, Elizabeth thought, to accept his handicaps so frankly. "Yes," she answered, "though either of us would be glad to drive for you, in principle you're quite right."

"Thank you. And now, since I don't know where the telephone is, will you stop arguing and call a cab for me, Mr. Herlong?"

Spratt chuckled and complied. Kessler turned back to Elizabeth.

"Mrs. Herlong," he said earnestly, "I can't tell you how happy you have made me."

It seemed a great deal to say in return for a pleasant evening, but he sounded as though he meant it. "We were all glad to have you, Mr. Kessler," she answered. "You have quite won the hearts of the children."

"They are delightful, all three of them. What a joy it is to see a home like yours. Your mode of living is so clear that it leaves no room for doubts. No one who spent an hour here could go away asking, 'Are they happy? Are they free? Do they love each other?' The answers are obvious."

Elizabeth stood up to face him. "Are we really like that? Would you say it just to be pleasant?"

"Indeed not. You should be very proud of such an achievement."

"It hasn't been all mine." She danced at Spratt, who was returning from the telephone. "I've had a great deal of cooperation."

Kessler's eyes followed hers, then cast back to her. "Yes, that is easily seen. I congratulate you both."

Elizabeth and Spratt both smiled back at him gratefully. Elizabeth wondered at their talking like this to a stranger. But just now Kessler did not seem like a stranger. From being a newcomer among them, he had subtly changed into a friend who made her comfortable with the security of mutual understanding. Whatever memory he had stirred within her, it must be some old experience of peace. Since overhearing the children yesterday she had felt unsure of herself and of them, but now, hearing him speak, it was as though she had slipped back into some forgotten period of long ago when everything was safe and right. He was saying to them,

"Your children can afford to be cynical about themselves because they don't know how superior they are to most of their fellowmen. They believe in the obvious because they've found it good. When you see people deliberately clinging to a belief in abstractions they don't know anything about, you can be pretty sure they need to do it, because everything they do know about is unsatisfactory."

"How cheering you are!" exclaimed Spratt.

Elizabeth was looking up at Kessler. She asked,

"Mr. Kessler, have you and I ever met before?"

He started. For a moment he looked down. She looked down with him, and saw his hand tighten on his cane. She was to learn that he did his often, making an unconscious gesture toward his physical means of support when his spirit felt undermined.

But he hesitated only for a moment. His self-discipline had been learned in a long hard school. He answered,

"Before tonight? If we had, Mrs. Herlong, I can't believe I could have forgotten it. No, I am sure we have not."

He had looked up, and was regarding her steadily. Elizabeth did not know that letting his eyes meet hers just then was one of the hardest achievements he had ever accomplished in his life.

He did it so well that she nearly believed him. "Maybe I'm wrong, then," she said. "But tonight, as soon as you came in, it seemed to me that I had seen you somewhere and I couldn't think where it was."

"Maybe," suggested Spratt, sitting down and taking up the cigarette box from the table, "you two saw each other at one of those big cocktail parties where you see hundreds of people and don't get to know any of them."

"Very likely," Kessler agreed readily, turning toward Spratt as though welcoming his suggestion.

"I have seen him before tonight."

"I've been forced against my will to attend several of those. Or possibly," he added, "you saw me at the studio. You come there now and then, don't you, Mrs. Herlong?" He glanced at her an instant as he spoke her name, and then became occupied with watching Spratt blow smoke-rings. "You might have caught sight of me talking from my bungalow to a projection room—chance glimpses like that sometimes tease our memories unmercifully."

"I suppose it must have been something of the sort," said Elizabeth. But she was still not satisfied. She continued, "But do you know, Mr. Kessler, when you came in I thought I knew you, and I thought you gave me a sort of startled look, as though you knew me too. You didn't?"

"If I stared at you rudely, I hope you will forgive me, Mrs. Herlong." He spoke lightly, almost humorously, as though it were a trifling matter. "I hope you will remember that I had been looking forward to meeting you, more eagerly than you realize. Attractive women have not been a great part of my life recently, or happy homes either. In the life of an exile they assume an importance that you do not understand, and I hope will never have to understand."

Elizabeth thought, "He protests too much," but Spratt was agreeing. "Yes, I should think they would. Is that your taxi pulling up, Kessler?"

"I believe it is," said Kessler. "Good night, and thank you both again."

Spratt walked out to the taxi with him. Elizabeth took a cigarette from the box on the table and stood looking down at the remains of the fire. When Spratt came in she turned around.

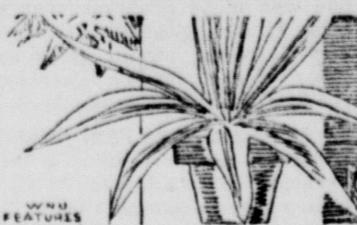

Since Margaret's party was going to strain their already overtaxed problem of household help, Spratt suggested that he bring Kessler over that evening, leaving him there while he drove Margaret and some of the other guests home, and then that he, Kessler, Elizabeth and the two older children go out for dinner. Elizabeth agreed gladly. She had managed to keep servants so far, but she wanted to give them no grounds for complaint. The party went very well, for Margaret was not shy among friends of her own age. They played in the pool, gobbled sherbet and cake without noticing that war exigencies had made it impossible to get ice cream, and were happily tired when they were finally coaxed back into their clothes and their parents began to arrive to take them home. Margaret came over to Elizabeth.

"It wasn't. I tell you, I know him."

"All right, all right, you know him. He doesn't know you. He said so. I'm going to sleep on my feet. We talked and talked, and didn't get a thing done."

"You didn't? I'm sorry."

"His mind wasn't on his work. He kept bringing himself back from a great distance and repeating something he'd said fifteen minutes ago. I never saw him like that; he's usually sharp as a whip. Tired, I suppose—working all evening after working all day never is a good idea."

For several weeks Mr. Kessler did nothing about getting a bat for Brian, a reticence that both Spratt and Elizabeth admired. They had had experience of persons who wanted to move in on their lives and had started by trying to load the children with attentions. As they all liked Kessler she invited him to dinner again, and Spratt brought him in two or three times to have a drink on their way from the studio, so when Kessler had had time to be quite sure the Herlongs were accepting him as one of their friends, he brought up the subject of the bat again, to Brian's great delight. Two days later he telephoned that he had obtained the bat, and made a date for Brian to come to see him.

It was very kind of him, Elizabeth thought, and she was glad to see her children's increasing friendship with him. Kessler never patronized them, and he had a great talent for minding his own business. He rarely mentioned the war unless somebody else brought it up, and when he did refer to national affairs he refrained admirably from making adverse criticisms of the President and from telling them what he thought Americans ought to do about anything. In fact, he listened to them a good deal more than he talked, though none of the children realized it. "He's swell," they said of him.

Kessler said to Elizabeth, with a touch of wistfulness, "There is a great deal of you in all your children." Occasionally she wondered why he seemed more interested in finding her characteristics than Spratt's. He and Spratt were good friends and Spratt frequently said his work on the picture was proving invaluable. But when he came to their home it was primarily to see her, a fact that Spratt observed with a sort of proud amusement. He liked other men to admire his wife.

Brian and Peter Stern visited Kessler so often that Elizabeth was sometimes afraid they were going to be nuisances, though Kessler insisted they were not. Brian saw little Margaret and announced grudgingly that she was not bad, so Elizabeth suggested the party. The next time Brian went to see Kessler she went by to get acquainted with Margaret. Kessler's modest street-floor apartment was kept for him by a motherly woman who came in leading Margaret by the hand and telling her to speak nicely to the lady, which Margaret did. She was an intelligent-looking child, with big blue eyes and two fat pigtail, shyly polite; as Elizabeth rarely had any trouble getting along with children, their acquaintance began without difficulty. Margaret had learned the English language very well. Oh yes, she said, she went to school and she was learning to swim, and when asked if she would like to have a party with her school friends she nodded eagerly. When they had got that far in their conversation Kessler came in, having left Brian and Peter blissfully occupied with the bones of the bat. "I'm going to have a party!" Margaret announced to him.

Kessler looked down at her and smiled fondly. Again Elizabeth felt a flash of recognition. "I've seen him somewhere, I know I have," she thought. "Maybe he doesn't remember, but I'm sure of it." However, she did not mention the subject, for Margaret was talking, and by the time they had arranged the date of the party and other details she felt it was time to go.

On the way home she made up her mind that though he might think her foolish for persisting, the next time she happened to be alone with Mr. Kessler she was going to ask him to rouse his brain and figure out where it was she had met him. There was no good reason why it should seem so important to her to remember, since it must have been a very casual meeting to have escaped her so thoroughly, but these occasional twinges of recollection teased her. Just for the instant when he had looked down at Margaret with a tender little smile, not only the expression of his face but his whole attitude had been so familiar that she had felt as though she was watching someone she had known for years. Then it was gone, and now she could not remember at all.

Since Margaret's party was going to strain their already overtaxed problem of household help, Spratt suggested that he bring Kessler over that evening, leaving him there while he drove Margaret and some of the other guests home, and then that he, Kessler, Elizabeth and the two older children go out for dinner. Elizabeth agreed gladly. She had managed to keep servants so far, but she wanted to give them no grounds for complaint. Margaret came over to Elizabeth.

"What about Notre Dame with Frank Leahy back? Good, but not great. The South and Midwest will both be strong. The East, outside of Army and Navy, won't be much different. The Far West still has a wide gap to close. The best pick along the Pacific will be St. Mary's, where Jimmy Phelan gave out one of the best coaching jobs I've ever seen and where Herman Wedemeyer will again be a vital factor. What about the two pro leagues? We'll turn that over to the Delphic Oracle.

What about boxing? The two tops in the country should be Joe Louis in the heavyweight division and Sugar Robinson among the welterweights. They should remain the two best ringmen of the year. Beau Jack will remain the best club fighter and the most popular entertainer. Graziano won't be far away. A Beau Jack-Graziano roundup can be one of the main features, where neither can box a lick. But where both like to throw punches, and let the clips fall where they may. They always put on a good, scrappy show."

"It wasn't. I tell you, I know him."

"All right, all right, you know him. He doesn't know you. He said so. I'm going to sleep on my feet. We talked and talked, and didn't get a thing done."

THIS seems to be as good a spot as any other to give you the various champions of 1946. Of course there may be a slight element of chance involved in these various nominations, but if you combine the past performance operations and the future chart you can't go far wrong. Also we reserve the right to make a few changes later on when some of the mists and fog have lifted and there is more light ahead.

These selections belong to the snows of winter, not the flowers of April and May nor the red and gold tints of next autumn. Here is our prediction for big league baseball:

American league

—Joe McCarthy's Yankees with the Red Sox and Tigers as leading challengers.

National league

The St. Louis Cardinals with Cubs, Dodgers and Giants close up.

At the moment Joe McCarthy seems to be more worried about the Red Sox with Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr and Tex Hughson back than the Tigers with Wakefield and Greenberg hitting, plus the pitching of Newhouse, Trout, Trucks and Benton.

Outside of the Cardinals, the scramble to finish in the first four teams will be terrific, depending largely on the clubs that get the pick of Sam Breadon's $100,000 or maybe $150,000 worth of pitchers, infielders and outfielders. I don't mean collectively, but individually. Sam Breadon has already sold over $200,000 worth of talent and he has something like $70,000 in the way of talent left. Owner Sam Breadon will have a big influence on the next National league race.

Joe McCarthy, one of the top managers of all time, is too conservative to make any predictions. "Why I haven't even seen such men as Dickey, Gordon, DiMaggio, Rizzuto, Johnson and others in several years. How could I know what they have? All I know is what they were—not what they are. Remember that old song of George Cohan's — 'It isn't what you used to be—it's what you are today.'"

Anyway, our first prediction stands — Yankees and Cardinals, which is no wild dash into the unknown. It is no long shot selection.

Army on Top in Football

As far as football goes, our top nomination is Red Blaik's Army team. This Army team has been the high spot of college football for the last two years. For 1946 it will still have most of its stars on hand, including Blanchard, Davis, Tucker, McWilliams, Coulter, Foldberg, Poole, Fuson and several new additions. Army's 1946 team may be even better than her 1944 and 1945 squads that outclassed the country.

I know Oklahoma A. and M., Indiana and Alabama believe they could have given Army an even scrap. Notre Dame and Pennsylvania felt the same way this last fall. Result against both: Army 109—Notre Dame and Pennsylvania 0. And don't forget Army was under wraps.

I'd pick Alabama in the south next to Army. Frank Thomas had a fine squad last fall and he will have a much better team next fall. He has more than a few outstanding stars coming back, plus the squad he already has.

Oklahoma A. and M. won't be far away with another big, fast, rugged and experienced bunch. Bo McMillin believes his Indiana team could give Army an even game, but I doubt Indiana could beat Alabama or Oklahoma A. and M.

Michigan, if the draft doesn't mow down Fritz Crisler's freshmen, can be one of the best. So can St. Mary's with new and bigger men coming in. Navy may rank close to Army—but not too close. Navy will certainly be the second best team in the east. Pennsylvania won't be far away, the top of the Ivy league, in a much closer run.

What about Notre Dame with Frank Leahy back? Good, but not great. The South and Midwest will both be strong. The East, outside of Army and Navy, won't be much different. The Far West still has a wide gap to close. The best pick along the Pacific will be St. Mary's, where Jimmy Phelan gave out one of the best coaching jobs I've ever seen and where Herman Wedemeyer will again be a vital factor. What about the two pro leagues? We'll turn that over to the Delphic Oracle.

What about boxing? The two tops in the country should be Joe Louis in the heavyweight division and Sugar Robinson among the welterweights. They should remain the two best ringmen of the year. Beau Jack will remain the best club fighter and the most popular entertainer. Graziano won't be far away. A Beau Jack-Graziano roundup can be one of the main features, where neither can box a lick. But where both like to throw punches, and let the clips fall where they may. They always put on a good, scrappy show."

Miss S. O. Woolls of Hondo,

SOME HORRORS OF THE WAR

One of the Brother Officers, Survivors of Bataan Death March, Capt. Goff, Tells of Bataan Killings.

Capt. G. E. Goff, U. S. Army, went to West Point in the year 1937, and received his commission in 1940. He was sent to the 5th Cavalry in Fort Clark, Texas. Orders were received from the War Dept. to proceed to the Phillipine Islands where he arrived Jan. 20, 1941, and was assigned to the Phillipine Scouts as Company Commander of Co. H. On Dec. 8, 1941, they proceeded to Lingayen where they contacted the Japs on Dec. 11, 1941. H Company, of which he was commander, was the first to come in contact with the Japs. In this battle they wiped out about 600 Japs. The second contact was at Lyack Junction on Luzon. In that battle Goff lost fifteen men. They then marched back to Bataan and formed the M. L. R. (Main Line of Resistance) at Orning Cut-off. On April 8, 1942, he and twelve men captured a machinegun nest, during which one man was lost and Goff was wounded. On the 9th of April, 1942, they surrendered to the enemy and on April 11 made the Death March to Camp O'Donnell in the Phillipine Islands. On the Death March the men receive neither food nor water. Every fifteen miles the Japs would change guards and keep the men on the move. When his brother officers were exhausted the Japs either shot them or cut off their heads, Goff said.

During the first six weeks in Camp O'Donnell they lost many men from starvation. In Nov. '42, Capt. Goff was moved to Saipan with General Wainwright and his staff. From Nov. '42 to June '43 he was on Saipan, then moved to Zentsuzi Prison Camp in Japan. In April 1944 his brother officers were dying from starvation about him. The Japs would cut the dead men in two and throw them into gasoline drums. He added: "The prisoners were so starved that after dark they would go down and eat the human flesh of their own men. Our diet was of human flesh, grass, and sometimes a cup of rice a day." When the Americans liberated them, Goff weighed 99 pounds. He was taken to an Australian hospital where he stayed four weeks, then taken to New York in November 1945.

Capt. Goff received his permanent commission from General Wainwright in January 1942. He is now assigned to the 4th Army at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

TO THE VOTERS OF MEDINA COUNTY, TEXAS:

Upon the announcement of Judge R. J. Noonan that he would not be a candidate for reelection to the office of District Attorney, a number of my friends urged me to make the race for the office. After giving the matter considerable thought, I have decided to submit myself to the voters as a candidate for the office.

I was born and reared in Uvalde County, Texas, attended the public schools there and later attended Texas A. & M. College and received a law degree from the University of Texas.

This is my fifth term as County Attorney of Uvalde County, Texas, to which office I have been elected each time without opposition.

I have practiced law since 1935 with the exception of the time I served in the United States Navy. I volunteered for induction into the Navy and finally received my honorable discharge on December 28, 1945.

In addition to carrying a general law practice I have been engaged in farming and ranching activities.

I am married and have a five year old son.

I believe that my experience as a lawyer and as County Attorney qualify me to carry out the duties of the office of District Attorney and I respectfully request the vote and support of the citizens of your county. If elected I shall do my utmost to justify the confidence you will have shown in me.

ROSS E. DOUGHTY.

Political Adv.—4tpd.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I wish to hereby respectfully announce my candidacy for the office of County Attorney, subject to the General November Election, 1946.

If elected, I promise to perform the duties of the office to the very best of my ability. And I want to assure one and all that your vote and support will be greatly appreciated by me.

I am now rounding out my tenth year as your district attorney, but will not be a candidate for re-election to that office. My reason for not desiring to serve as district attorney after the present term expires is simply based upon the fact that our large district calls for long trips away from home which become especially hard during the winter months, and I do not care to endanger my health by continuing. I prefer to hereafter devote my time and energy to the practice of my profession in my home county, where I can see more of my old friends and be closer to home.

Thanking you for the many past favors which you have granted me and for the continued trust that you have reposed in me, I remain,

Respectfully yours,

R. J. NOONAN,
Political Adv.—4tpd

SUGAR RATIONING INFORMATION

The transfer of sugar rationing from Price Control Boards to the Special Sugar Rationing Office of the San Antonio district Office of Price Administration has brought about the use of three new sugar forms. Many of these forms are being returned incomplete, Cal C. Straughan, sugar rationing officer, announced, pointing out that incomplete forms only delay the issuance of new books.

Before new books can be issued to replace lost, stolen, destroyed, or mutilated books, forms must be filled in completely, and all stolen books must be reported to the police department. When applying for a replacement for a stamp inadvertently removed or a mutilated book, return the old book with the application.

The application forms for temporary furlough sugar ration books and for new books also must be completed before a book can be issued, Straughan added.

Straughan's advice to people who have trouble filling out forms is, "Consult the price clerk of your local Price Control Board. He is there to assist you. However, check the form carefully to be sure that all questions are answered. Then mail the application to the Sugar Rationing Office, OPA, Transit Tower San Antonio 6, Texas."

THE LOW DOWN FROM
HICKORY GROVE

You know, one thing you can say for prize fightin'—hitting below the belt is not cricket and the guy doing so gets booted whether he is the champion or the other guy. And a referee, if he don't shoot square with both parties, he gets booted also. But prize fightin' in some quarters sorta looked down on as if it was rougher or uncouth people involved.

What you drivin' at, says Henry. Well, I says, it is on account of how our government could take some pointers from the squared circle—and when a labor dispute shows up it should not take sides or look the other way, or favor one versus the other. Take one item like pickets, where they clutter up a neighborhood or keep the boss off his own property. That is not shootin' square with the boss.

A referee, when he gets to sidin' with one versus the other contestants, he is about washed up—and his referring days are numbered. Like it was there with Belshazzar when he fell down on the job, in Mesopotamia.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA.

THE DAY OF FREE CHOICE

In a free country such as the United States has always been, commentators and editorial writers, when contemplating on important issues, get in the habit of saying the people must choose. For a long time it has been said in this country that the people must choose between capitalism and socialism, between government ownership and free enterprise—in short, between liberty and dictatorship. The day will eventually come when the editorial writers can no longer refer the problem to the judgment of the people—the choice will have been made.

Lewis H. Brown, chairman of the Tax Foundation, makes some telling observations that indicate the day of free choice for the people is coming to an end. "Today," said Mr. Brown, "industry is beginning to realize that its greatest competition for the citizen's dollar is government. There isn't such a thing as 'big business' today. Business is relative. And the biggest thing in this country today is government. It is the biggest trust that has ever been put together. It is more powerful by a thousand times than any trust or combination of trusts against which Theodore Roosevelt wielded his big stick."

"The melting pot of taxation is seething and bubbling over with appropriations, levies, debts, loan subsidies, dual levies, exemptions, discriminations, confiscation, and unlimited powers, and in it all there is the hissing sound of inflation."

"When the people support the government and the government is subservient to the people, then the American system is safe. But when the government supports the people, then the people will, of necessity, be subservient to the government, and representative government will perish!"—Industrial News Review.

FAIR EMPLOYMENT ACT IS SUCKER BAIT

There has been more downright drivel peddled in behalf of the misnamed Fair Employment Practices Act than for any piece of political hocus-pocus in many years.

The Act seeks to make employers hire more Negroes. Oratorical politicians wave the flag, talk about the Atlantic Charter and the Four Freedoms, and tell how we fought this war to bring freedom and equality to the world.

They don't say how the Fair Employment Practices Act which would force an employer to hire a Negro, would not require the same employer to hire a white person or a Negro if specified labor union.

He refused to join some specified group. There is no longer any freedom for a white laborer, or a Negro laborer, to earn a living in the United States in the basic industries unless he first pays labor organizations for that privilege. Why should Congress talk about a fair employment act for either a white man or a colored man, and then, by legislation or lack of legislation, prevent a man getting a job?

It has remained for Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland to bring the hypocrisy of the Fair Employment Practices Act into the open. He seeks to make the bill at least honest in its purpose by urging its senatorial sponsors to carry out fully and logically their professed principles by supporting an amendment making it illegal to deny a job to any man because he is not a member of a union. How can an act be a fair employment act unless that is done?

Senator Tydings' suggested amendment would bring back a man's constitutional right to earn a living in the United States without paying for the privilege, and leave him free to join or not to join any organization he sees fit. There should be no discrimination against any workman merely because of his race, creed, political or labor affiliations—Industrial News Review.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND by DREW PEARSON

AMERICA'S OIL TWINS

WASHINGTON. — Many senators believe that the confirmation row over charming Ed Pauley as under secretary of the navy has taken on new significance now that Sec. Harold Ickes has offered Ralph Davies the job of under secretary of the interior.

It happens that Davies and Ed Pauley are bosom friends. Both are oil men. Both have followed the policy of "scratch-my-back-I'll-scratch-yours." This is important.

Recently, Secretary Ickes, who has a crusading record for guarding the nation's resources, recommended to President Truman that naval oil reserves be transferred from the navy to the interior department. It was just such a transfer by Albert K. Fall in the Harding administration that resulted in the Teapot dome oil scandal.

No motive is attributed to the Ickes proposal except that of safeguarding oil. In fact, some people consider it significant that his proposal happened to coincide, by luck or otherwise, with the nomination of Oil Man Pauley to be under secretary of the navy.

But what senators consider important is that, with Pauley's friend Ralph Davies offered the job of under secretary of the interior, the navy's oil lands, no matter where they are located — in interior or navy — will be partially under Pauley or a friend of his.

MEXICAN OIL DEAL

Relationship between Davies and Pauley has been extremely close. Davies was executive vice president of Standard Oil of California. Pauley sold him his own independent oil company. Later Pauley brought Davies to Washington, introduced him to Ickes, following which Davies became Ickes' deputy oil administrator. He did a good job.

However, state department officials say he continued to look out for Ed Pauley.

When Pauley was trying to lobby his high-octane Mexican gasoline plant through the government, it had to pass the hurdle of Secretary Ickes' petroleum administration. Davies okayed it — not only okayed it, but pushed it vigorously. At first Ickes also gave it his blessing.

First Ickes also gave it his blessing.

The state department, however, was vigorously opposed.

Showdown came in a secret session between Ickes, Davies, a Davies aid, and the Assistant Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

The full story of this session was never really told at the senate hearing. Acheson opened by giving Ickes a very careful diagnosis of why the Mexican high-octane gasoline plant should not be built by Pauley. He took up point after point, his main argument being that the Mexican government would have to pay such a high price to Pauley that it would sour U. S.-Mexican relations.

After Acheson had finished, Ickes turned to Pauley's friend, Ralph Davies, and asked:

"Why didn't you tell me these things?"

"I didn't know them either," replied the red-faced Davies. Then, turning to his aid, he alibied: "Why didn't you tell me these things?"

Ickes immediately reversed himself, threw his weight against Pauley. That is the real inside of how the Pauley octane plant for Mexico was stopped. Davies, of course, is an able, intelligent operator, too intelligent not to have known the main points of the Pauley plan. Pauley is equally able. He would be a good executive almost anywhere. But some senators want to think twice before putting these oil twins near the head of two departments controlling the oil reserves of the nation.

PRESIDENTIAL HUMOR

President Truman has been taking recent criticism in excellent humor. The other day he was talking with a group of friends and said:

"Apparently, no matter what I do I'm always in the middle. I say something about Palestine, and the Jews and the Arabs holler. Labor and capital get in a fight, and I am in the middle. The Russians and the British have an argument, and I am in the middle."

Suddenly the President paused, walked over to the door of his office, which connects with that of his secretary, Matthew Connelly, and called out:

"Hey, Matt, where can I buy a copy of Dale Carnegie's 'How to Win Friends and Influence People'?"

Dress With a Contrasting Top Offers Endless Possibilities

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

NOT only has the dress with a contrast top held high fashion rank right through the fall and winter, but it now registers as a major theme on the new spring style program.

The idea of a two-piece costume that tops a skirt with a contrast blouse or bodice offers endless possibilities in way of versatile interpretation. It is ever so practical too in that it is easier to get a few yards of this material or that, in these days of limited yardage distribution, than it is to buy a whole dress length in a single fabric. Then too, there's thrifit in the dress made up of a skirt with interchangeable tops.

The field of the contrast top is of such wide scope it enters into every phase of fashion from formal gowns, dressy afternoon types, simple daytime dresses to play clothes, and this year in early showings the suit that tops a dark or light skirt with a bright jacket is displayed as a fashion-first for spring.

If you like something different in way of a suit, choose a smart model that tops a black or navy skirt with a jacket tailored in soft pink or ice-blue wool.

The suit that teams a dark brown skirt with a jacket in a vivid copper-colored wool would be a perfect selection for spring.

The contrast idea is most happily carried out in the costumes pictured. The striped-top rayon dress centered in the illustration is ever so wearable and good looking for daytime occasions.

Black with chartreuse is the color combination. The whole effect is co-ordinated with the use of black front facings, cuffs and belt.

Girls who can sew are enthusiastic over the dressy blouses they make of crisp taffeta in bright or pastel plaids and stripes. These have a ruffle peplum with the ruffle repeated in the sleeves.

To the left is a one-piece dress-up version of the college girl's sweater and skirt that gives the impression of a two-piece. The sweater top of rayon-and-wool boucle on a lovely pastel is joined to the black rayon skirt with a wide belt effect.

Bejeweled Black

Your returning hero will like the way you look in this quality-kind black rayon crepe dress, sparkling with jeweled accents. There is something about romantic black that always creates an aura of elegance and charm. Note the nicely fitted sleeves and the modishly draped skirt. A dress of this type is the mainstay of one's wardrobe the entire year round. The distinguishing quality of this good-looking black dress that goes everywhere with aplomb is that it maintains the slim figure flattering silhouette.

Pleats, Flares, Bows Give Accent to Hips

Hips are in fashion! We will have to reorganize our former ideas about slenderizing hips, for definitely a new angle in this season's silhouette is the accenting of hips. This is done in ingenious and varied ways. Dresses are coming in with fullness at each side achieved with pleats, flares, shirrings, inset panels with pleats in tiers, and so on. Then too, designers are doing clever things with pockets, bows, tucks and even panniers are seen on afternoon dresses and evening formals. Sometimes a little crinoline is used to accent hips. However, in most instances the fullness and pleats are introduced so skilfully as to preserve a slender look. In the smart form-fitting princess gowns a single huge bow at one hip gives a smart look. It is obvious that hips are inevitable with the smaller waistlines, and the new silhouettes are charmingly picturesque.

Designers' Skill Focuses

On Sleeves in Spring Wear

Virtually every model in the new spring collection dramatizes the sleeves of suits, jackets, dresses and coats. All the skill, imagination, whimsy, tricks of cut and fine seaming, buttons, beads, sequins, embroidery, tucks, ruffles, color slashings and insets, goes into the sleeves. What is left makes the slimmest of skirts and the snuggest of bodices and jackets, thus focusing attention on the sleeves.

Some are shining with buttons that hold decorative flaps, others have caps of plain material over the shoulder to accent the long beaded and embroidered sleeves.

Homes This Way, Please

This is la dizzy age. You can now buy a home in a department store!

And get the landscaping one flight up and the poultry house in the basement.

Alladin was a small time magician by comparison. He couldn't get any more staggering results using his wonderful lamp than a shopper can get using the elevators.

Even a man who thinks he has been everywhere and seen everything yells for an aspirin when he hears the elevator girl chirp "Sixth floor for bungalows, villas, duplexes, country estates and small farms!"

We joined the shopping rush at one of the big stores selling homes the other day. It was terrific. We lost a rib in the hall of a cottage for two, got a dislocated shoulder between the bath and the kitchenette of a country home and had our shins barked in the patio of a demi-tasse residence marked down to $4,998 from $5,000 (only one to a customer).

You may think the women folks are tough when in search of nylons but you haven't seen unnecessary roughness until you see them with their boy-friends determined to find out which department store is offering the hottest sale of bargain domiciles.

An embattled shopper in the Christmas rush trying to grab the last bottle of perfume is a mildly aggressive compare to a wife, mother or sister out to find the best buys in kitchenettes, guest rooms, sun porches and picket fences.

Some of the hardest looks we ever saw exchanged between human beings we saw exchanged between two recent brides claiming an inspection priority on the threshold of a 10 by 12 living room.

Artificial trees, rocks, rills and grass gave such an effect of reality to the homes, that we sat on one porch and complained to the floor-walker that there was no sea breeze.

In the patio of the house in the next alley, we heard a woman ask a salesman, "Haven't you something with a better view?"

Be it ever so humble there is no place like home, wrapped to be taken out or sent parcels post.

Next elevator, please, for garages, cabanas, extra circular stairways, spare cellars and hanging gardens!

Those Old Buggies
Do you recall the one-cylinder Pierce-Arrow Motorette which had a surrey top and was steered by a lever which came out at right angles from the side?

Prior to that one, I rode as a kid in a one-cylinder Selden. This had wheels like a bicycle and the seats were back to back and it was steered with a tiller in the center.

The old model K-Winton (four-cylinder) was driven with planetary drive, which had a low and high speed, of course, and this was controlled on a side lever. There was a second side lever, which, when pushed forward, was supposed to be an emergency brake, but had no ratchet to hold it and if you relied on the braking power you were completely lost.

LOCAL DEALER FOR OLIVER EQUIPMENT HANDICAPPED BY STRIKES and where many storekeepers, store employees, bank employees and some themselves don't make nearly as much.

An apparent effort by the C. I. O. to cripple production of badly needed farm implements and tractors resulted last Tuesday in the calling of a strike of 1,700 employee of the Charles City, Iowa, wheel tractor plant of The Oliver Corporation, according to information received here by Allen Tillotson, dealer for Oliver equipment.

This plant is the second in the company to be pulled, Mr. Tillotson said, the South Bend plow works having been struck more than three months ago. In addition, eleven plants of one company and five of still another maker of implements and tractors are on strike, with the result the supply of necessary equipment for farmers of the nation is becoming tighter and tighter with no indications of relief.

Farmers who have struggled along for years without sufficient equipment will be interested in the demands made upon implement manufacturers, Mr. Tillotson believes.

The C. I. O. originally demanded increases at Chayres City of 132 percent which would boost the annual payroll from $2,938,000 to $6,400,000, an increase of $3,500,000, he said. If granted by the company, the company would have only two courses open to it—boost the prices of its tractors to figures the farmer could not afford to pay, or lose money and eventually shut the plant down and go out of the tractor business.

The company did, according to Mr. Tillotson, make every effort to prevent the C. I. O. from calling the strike.

It offered to raise wages to a point where the rates would be 56 percent over earnings in the base period of 1941, which would be a bonus of 23 percent over the rise in living costs.

With the increase offered by the company, he said, the lowest worker would receive weekly pay for 40 hours of $36.80, and employees in the highest bracket would be paid $57.20 for 40 hours. Since production on a longer work week would have been possible for months, the employees would receive time and a half for each hour above the basic 40, giving them still greater earnings in an agricultural area community where living costs are
